

SERVICEABLE SUMMER COAT

The coat that covers the frock from neck to hem is always the most satisfactory sort for a child.

This dainty coat of pin-striped blue and white mohair is cut on excellent lines and there is just enough flare at the foot to avoid stiffness and angularity.

The coat closes below the waist with large, fancy buttons.

The deep shawl collar is faced with light blue moire silk matching the blue stripe in the coat.

The hat is a smart model of pleated navy blue taffeta with a rose of velvet at one side.

FOR THE SUMMER TRIP

Where a trip is taken, even for a day, a pair of loose slippers are a luxury. The walking shoes are apt to become very tiresome, as the idle feet swell, especially in a warm place, and the shoes can be removed at once on getting settled, and the slippers put on. Silk walking shoes are very desirable for traveling wear, as it is very light and cool, and does not wrinkle easily.

For sleeping car use, a thin silk cap something like the bathing or dust cap, is good to sleep in, and will keep the hair clean and free from the cinders. For passing to and fro when making the toilet, a long kimono, either of black China silk or dark chaille, or of light-weight sateen, is most indispensable. Silk takes up so little room in the suit case, and does not wrinkle so much as the other goods, that it has the preference.

As soon as possible, on arriving at your journey's end, shake out every article as it comes from the trunk. No matter what the article shake and air well. If you have no good place to hang the clothing in your new stopping place, shake out every day, and fold in different ways in order that the creases will get no chance to get set. Hang blouses and skirts up-side down, especially when there are many bounces on the skirts. Use plenty of tissue paper in packing, and smooth it out for further use when you reach the stopping place.

Where the trunk must be kept in the room, it should have a serviceable cover. Deplum is one of the most serviceable materials, and dark cretonne is also desirable. Have a top, or center, just fitting the top of the trunk, and to this piece sew a scant bounce that will just clear the floor when the cover is in place. A couple of cushions covered with the same material as the trunk will transform the trunk into a very comfortable seat where room is scarce.

Miss Cora Abbott is taking a fifteen day leave of absence from her duties in the postoffice. She will spend one week of her vacation visiting with friends and relatives in Chicago.

polls as far as the state of Indiana was concerned, yet when I am coming into Indiana from Illinois, not knowing where I was, I find myself suddenly in the enemy's country and my driver is held up for fast driving in a swamp.

"I have some good friends who claim to live in Hammond, among them yourself, Murray Turner and Mr. Gavit, your city attorney. I have spent a great deal of time in the legislature in assisting your city, yet the first time I am within your limits, out in a swamp, my driver is held up for fast driving in a swamp. If your officer had acted like a gentleman, it would have been different, but he acted more like a ruffian. Of all these things, I don't think the city of Hammond can afford to be represented in this light. I can afford it, but if I am subjected to such humiliation, under the circumstances, I think it will be necessary to get some legislation through the next legislature regarding the city of Hammond. I am not sore about this matter, but I am simply stating facts. I am not entering a plea of guilty for my driver. This is a matter that I leave to you.

"One of your neighbors visited our temple one night and gave us a very cordial invitation to come to Hammond and extended us the freedom of the city. The only mistake that we made was not to get that freedom in writing.

"Kindly show this letter to your city attorney and Mr. Murray Turner. If the tactics of this officer is to be the policy of your city government, I will have to revise my route to Chicago, hereafter, and advise my friends to do the same.

"Thanking you in advance in this matter, I am,

"Very truly yours,"

DESK FITTINGS OF CRETONNE

Pretty Idea for Furnishing Girls' Room.

For a girl's room that is furnished with one of the lovely flowered cretonnes or chintzes it is a pretty idea to have her desk fittings in the same material. And she can make them all herself, which is an added pleasure to most girls when they are fitting up a room. First there is the large blotter. This is made by cutting a piece of heavy cardboard just the size she wants and covering it smoothly with the cretonne. The best way to cover it is to cut the cretonne a little larger than the cardboard and turn it over the edge of the board and glue it firmly all along the edge. The corners must be mitered so that they just fit.

Over the edge of the covering is glued a gimp to finish it. At each corner fasten a little triangle of the cretonne, folded on the diagonal side, to hold the corners of the blotting paper. These extra pieces are put on before the gimp. Or, instead of the cretonne corners a strip of the gimp may be fastened across each corner and the blotting paper slipped under.

The next thing to make is a rack for paper and envelopes. For this buy the cheapest wooden rack to be found (unless you happen to have a brother who can make one for you) and glue the cretonne all over it, finishing it with the gimp. A tray for pens and pencils can be made to match by using the cover of a long, narrow box as a foundation and covering it with the material in the same way. The ideal may be carried out in any other things used on a desk, as a stamp box or a box for rubber bands.
